SNOW EMERGENCY

Ron Whalen and his grandson spent Tuesday scraping and shoveling snow in the Springdale Avenue area. State, county and city road crews have spent many hours on the streets and roads to make them passable. Forecasters are calling for below-zero temperatures the rest of the week, which will allow for very little snow melt.

Judge declares state of emergency for Harrison County

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

Harrison County Judge-Executive Alex Barnett declared the county to be in a state of emergency following a blizzard that brought near record snow fall to the area Monday morning and subzero temperatures forecast for the rest of the week.

“Hopefully, by declaring a weather emergency, we’ll be eligible to recoup some of the costs we’re going to be incurring because of the snow and cold,” Barnett said.

The snowfall began just before sunrise Monday morning and continued to increase in severity throughout the rest of the day. By the afternoon, news reports estimated snowfall coming at roughly an inch an hour.

By the end of the day, several families were posting snow totals via social media.

At mid-afternoon, Carol Workman of Carl Stevens Road said that snow totals measured nearly seven inches. By the evening, snowfall had added another inch to that total.

On Rocky Springs Road, Kimberly Hargett Bowlin said the snow totals reached seven inches deep, according a measuring stick a local teacher had given to her daughter.

On Republican Pike near Buena Vista, Karen Bear reported totals ranging from six to seven inches with snow drifts adding considerably to that depth in spots.

The record breaking, though, is less likely the amount of snow fallen around the area as the sustained subzero temperatures that forecasters are predicting through the week.

Miss Kentucky United States

Himes claims prestigious title at pageant

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Katie Himes has been grabbing headlines since she was a little girl.

Her crowning glory came last weekend when she became Miss Kentucky United States for 2015. She will go on to compete in July for Miss United States in Virginia.

“Pleasantly shocked” is how Himes described her feelings when the judges announced their decision.

A moment before the announcement, Himes said she told her long-time friend and pageant contestant, Stephanie Ramos, “This is all you.”

However, it was Ramos’ name that was announced as the first runner up, leaving a very shocked and elated Himes as the pageant’s winner.

“It’s funny because you just never know,” Himes said Tuesday afternoon. “You don’t want to go into it thinking that you will win, but you don’t want to think that you won’t either.”

The Miss Kentucky United States pageant was held in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee, at the Country Tonight Theater. On the same night, Miss Tennessee United States was named. The 2014 pageants were held in Kentucky, Himes said.

Drug-related charges may follow alleged assault

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

While drug-related charges are pending against a Cynthiana man, he has been jailed on allegations of second degree burglary and second degree assault.

Alfonso Bowman, 42, was arrested Monday around 8:30 p.m. by Cynthiana Police Ptl. Matt Royse. Bowman allegedly walked into his former girlfriend’s home at 308 Penn St. and struck Brett Haley, the new boyfriend, in the face with a cell phone.

Haley suffered a laceration over his eye.

Royse said

police went to Bowman’s home at 124 E. Pike St. but were unable to get him to answer the door. A search warrant was obtained and police made a forced entry where they were able to take Bowman into custody.

Royse said as a result of having the search warrant, additional charges against Bowman are awaiting further investigation.

Charges result from Tuesday argument on Marshall Ave.

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

A Cynthiana man was arrested early Wednesday morning following a verbal argument that turned into an alleged physical confrontation.

Cynthiana Police Ptl. Michael Kiskaden arrested Catesby Bramel, 33, just after midnight Wednesday, charging him with two counts of second degree wanton endangerment.

According to Kiskaden, Bramel and his live-in girlfriend got into an argument at their Marshall Avenue home.

The girlfriend, whose name is being withheld to protect the names of her juvenile children, told police that as the argument with Bramel escalated, she told him to leave the residence.

“On his way out he had some choice words for her,” Kiskaden said, adding that Bramel got into his vehicle and began “doing donuts.”

He almost hit her car, which is when the teenagers staying at the residence ran outside.

“The kids picked up a ball bat swinging at the windows to get him to stop,” Kiskaden said. The teens were allegedly clipped by the car while it was moving.

The car ended up in a yard on Marshall Avenue and Bramel was taken to the Bourbon County Detention Center.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service teams with conservation partners to launch campaign to save declining monarch butterfly

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) launches a major new campaign aimed at saving the declining monarch butterfly. The Service signed a cooperative agreement with the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), announced a major new funding initiative with the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation (NFWF), and pledged an additional $2 million in immediate funding for on-the-ground conservation projects around the country. Introducing the new initiatives at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. were Service Director Dan Ashe, U.S. Senator from Minnesota Amy Klobuchar, NWF President and CEO Collin O'Mara, and NFWF representatives.

While monarchs are found across the United States - as recently as 1996 numbering some one billion - their numbers have declined by approximately 90 percent in recent years, a result of numerous threats, particularly loss of habitat due to agricultural practices, development and cropland conversion.

Degradation of wintering habitat in Mexico and California has also had a negative impact on the species.

To directly tackle these challenges, the new cooperative effort will build a network of diverse conservation partners and stakeholders to protect and restore important monarch habitat, while also reaching out to Americans of all ages who can play a central role.

“We can save the monarch butterfly in North America, but only if we act quickly and together,” said Ashe. “And that is why we are excited to be working with the National Wildlife Federation and National Fish and Wildlife Foundation to engage Americans everywhere, from schools and community groups to corporations and governments, in protecting and restoring habitat. Together we can create oases for monarchs in communities across the country.”

“Known for its beautiful orange color, fascinating life cycle and remarkable annual migration, the monarch butterfly is the most iconic butterfly in North America,” Klobuchar said. “With the butterfly rapidly disappearing, I am pleased to see the Fish and Wildlife Service taking positive steps to reverse its decline. We must build on this momentum, and I will continue to call on the public and private sectors to join together in the effort to protect the monarch butterfly.”

The memorandum of understanding between NWF and the Service will serve as a catalyst for national collaboration on monarch conservation, particularly in planting native milkweed and nectar plants, the primary food sources in breeding and migration habitats for the butterfly.

“If we all work together - individuals, communities, farmers, land managers, and local, state, and federal agencies - we can ensure that every American child has a chance to experience amazing monarchs in their backyards,” said O'Mara. “By taking action today and addressing the growing threats that are affecting so much of America's treasured wildlife - habitat loss, pesticide overuse and climate change - we will preserve monarchs and America's rich wildlife legacy. The National Wildlife Federation and our state affiliates are proud to stand with the Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, and other key partners on the front lines of action.”

The new NFWF Monarch Conservation Fund announced was kick-started by an injection of $1.2 million from the Service that will be matched by other private and public donors. The fund will provide the first dedicated source of funding for projects working to conserve monarchs.

“The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation has a long track record of partnering with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to develop successful private landowner-focused conservation grant programs,” said NFWF Director and CEO Jeff Trandahl. “We look forward to working closely with the Service as we establish the Monarch Butterfly Conservation Fund, which will serve as a key component of the effort to revitalize monarch butterfly populations and the important native plant species on which they depend.”

From California to the Corn Belt, the Service will also fund numerous conservation projects totaling $2 million this year to restore and enhance more than 200,000 acres of habitat for monarchs while also supporting over 750 schoolyard habitats and pollinator gardens. Many of the projects will focus on the I-35 corridor from Texas to Minnesota, areas that provide important spring and summer breeding habitats in the eastern population's central flyway.

“These projects will not only help us leverage expertise and resources for engaging critical partners on restoring the monarch,” said Ashe. “We will also reach out to millions of Americans on both the challenge involved and how they can help. Together, we will make sure that the monarch continues to be a welcome sight across America.”

The monarch is perhaps the best-known butterfly species in the United States. Every year they undertake one of the world's most remarkable migrations, traveling thousands of miles over many generations from Mexico, across the United States, to Canada.

The monarch's exclusive larval host plant and a critical food source is native milkweed, which has been eradicated or severely degraded in many areas across the United States in recent years. The accelerated conversion of the continent's native short and tallgrass prairie habitat to crop production has also had an adverse impact on the monarch.

Spectacular as it is, protecting the monarch is not just about saving one species. The monarch serves as an indicator of the health of pollinators and the American landscape. Monarch declines are symptomatic of environmental problems that pose risks to our food supply, the spectacular natural places that help define our national identity, and our own health.

Conserving and connecting habitat for monarchs will benefit other plants, animals and important insect and avian pollinators.

The Service's public engagement effort includes a monarch website at www.fws.gov/savethemonarch with details and photos on the monarch's plight, information on how Americans can get involved and direct outreach to schools and communities. Since agriculture also plays a key role in the monarch's survival, our partnership efforts will engage farmers and landowners on management practices that will protect and restore habitat.

A healthy bedtime routine is important for kids

(State Point) Establishing a consistent bedtime routine is a prelude to a great night's sleep, which is critical for young bodies and brains.

Here are some great ways to create healthy bedtime habits for you and your family.

Screen-Free Down Time

Our electronic devices are an integral part of our lives. Even young children may spend a portion of time each day using tablets, mobile phones and e-readers. However, the light emitted from these devices can hinder sleep, so make sure you incorporate some screen-free down time before bed.

Great substitutes for these electronics are good old-fashioned books, storytelling time, board games and puzzles.

Brush Up

February is Children's Dental Health Month, an excellent opportunity for both kids and parents to learn more about preventive dental care and the importance of a healthy oral care routine. It's also a good time to give back and help other children in the community who may not have access to dental care.

A free downloadable coloring book called “Brushing Fun,” is available to help introduce kids to healthy habits. Each free download will trigger a donation of 10 tubes of Tom's of Maine Wicked Cool! natural toothpaste to Oral Health America (OHA), a non-profit dedicated to increasing access to oral health care, education and advocacy for all Americans. The coloring book, which can be personalized with a child's name, offers games, puzzles, tips and facts about oral care, as well as a story that encourages kids to appreciate nature.

“Brushing twice a day is a fundamental healthy habit. Kids are never too young to learn how to take care of their smile,” says Susan Dewhirst, goodness programs manager at Tom's of Maine.

More than 200,000 annual patient visits have been made possible and more than a million tubes of free toothpaste have been distributed by the Tom's of Maine Dental Health for All program. To learn more, visit www.TomsofMaine.com.

Set a Schedule

Sticking to a set bedtime for kids may be difficult at first for both you and your children. But once everyone adjusts to the schedule, the benefits will be made clear.

A consistent bedtime policy will be easier to enforce, and kids' internal clocks will likely adjust to the schedule over time. To determine an appropriate bedtime for your school-age kids, factor in the Mayo Clinic recommendation of nine to 11 hours of sleep per night.

For better sleep and healthy smiles, create bedtime routines for you and your family that are easy to follow.

Emergency shelter opened at new Search and Rescue office on Oddville Avenue

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The Harrison County emergency weather shelter in the former offices of the county clerk on Oddville Avenue will remain open all week long for individuals and families put at risk in subzero temperatures this week.

Harrison County Search and Rescue chief Re'Jeana Craft said the shelter could use a few more local volunteers to welcome families taking refuge from a winter that's taken a brutal turn in mid-February.

The shelter was opened just after midnight on Monday morning in response to a critical need, said Gayle Velat, Harrison County director of the American Red Cross.

Harrison County Sheriff Shain Stephens called Craft concerning the needs of a young homeless man discovered living in a plastic tent beneath a bridge on U.S. 27 in downtown Cynthiana.

Answering this need was also a christening for the new emergency shelter and meeting space, Velat added.

The office building on Oddville was converted into evening meeting space for local organizations and an emergency shelter after the Harrison County Clerk's Office and PVA office was moved to the Harrison County Courthouse in January.

Velat said that the shelter has been used by two Harrison County people so far, but they anticipate more needs as the temperatures continue to drop.

In addition to the homeless person, another local resident took refuge when his own heating system went down, Velat said.

Velat and Craft commended the local community on its humanitarian response to the needs of those who sought refuge at the shelter.

An abundance of food, clothing and other basic needs were donated to help out these people in need.

"The Harrison County community has always responded generously when the emergency shelter has needs," Craft observed. "When we need breakfast or snack items, the local restaurants and grocery stores have always been glad to contribute."

With weather forecasts predicting record lows the remainder of the week, the Harrison County Volunteer Emergency Management team will keep the shelter open as long as conditions require it, commented Craft.

School snow days will be determined day to day, says Case

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The Harrison County school schedule is in a good position to handle the unanticipated closings this week, according to Harrison County Assistant Superintendent David Case.

In fact, the snow storm on Monday had no impact on the school calendar as it was President's Day, which was scheduled as a potential make up day for school closings, Case said.

As of the school closing Wednesday, Harrison County Schools have only had seven total school cancellations this year, a vast improvement over the situation last year, Case said.

So far, the school system has only closed once in November due to weather conditions. An outbreak of the flu in December prompted a school closure, Case said.

There were two days in January and a day in February, too, he said. But this week has been the only one where there has been sustained closures over consecutive days, Case said.

Harrison County administration is adopting a day-to-day assessment of weather conditions to announce school closings, he said. He stopped short of saying whether Harrison Schools would be closed the remainder of the week.

"If we can avoid closing we will. But we will not put students at risk," he said.

Even if snow fall does not continue, the administration will also consider the forecast of subzero temperatures as a criteria to cancel school, he said.

He said that Harrison County will announce well ahead of time if schools will be closed so parents can make appropriate plans, he said.

But there have been no closures yet that would force a major alteration in the school calendar, he added.

Special election vote will be at armory

Kentucky Gov. Steve Beshear has called for a special election on Tuesday, March 3, to fill the seat of Wayne Blevins Jr. who resigned as representative of the 27th Senatorial District.

Blevins was elected as Rowan County judge-executive in November. The March 3 special election will be to fill Blevins' unexpired term.

Harrison County Clerk Linda Furnish said all precincts will vote at Cynthiana's National Guard Armory at 1497 New Lair Road between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Two candidates will be vying for the Blevins' seat. Running as the Democratic candidate will be Maysville attorney, Kelly Caudill.

Steve West, Bourbon County attorney and cattle farmer, was chosen as the Republican candidate to appear on the ballot.

The 27th Senate District includes Harrison, Bourbon, Fleming, Lewis, Mason, Nicholas, Robertson and Rowan counties.

Crown

Miss Kentucky United States and Miss Tennessee United States have contests in four age divisions from the Little Miss up to the title Himes claimed.

In 2008, Himes was winner of the Miss Junior Teen United States title.

In addition to Sunday's title, Himes is Miss Kentucky Festivals, a title she will retain until November.

As it turns out, 2015 will be quite memorable for the 22-year-old Northern Kentucky senior.

She will graduate in May with a major in criminal justice and a minor in psychology.

Right now she's on track to graduate magna cum laude.

She attends classes at NKU on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and works for Ray Larson, commonwealth attorney for the Fayette County circuit.

She is also beginning to refocus on her Bully Basher platform, from which she took a brief break this semester.

She is scheduling school visits to talk about bullying during her spring break.

"That's the thing about pageants," Himes said. "You can network."

Himes said just talking with a woman before the crowning she had a school visit scheduled.

"It's been a crazy semester," Himes said. "I'm trying to absorb the last few months of it."

Himes is commuting between NKU and her internship in Lexington.

She just purchased a home in Lexington and is preparing for the next phase of her life.

She is the daughter of Cathy and Bob Himes of Cynthiana and the granddaughter of Billy and Pat Kerns, Cynthiana, and Edwin and Audrey Himes of Lancaster, Kentucky.

Sometimes its best to just let the snow fall

If I had listened to my mother and become a school teacher, Monday's snow would not have been an issue. But I didn't and it was.

After getting myself ready for work, I trudged out to my car, sweeping a path in the three and one-half inches of snow.

I started the car and used the broom to clear the windows of snow.

Good to go, I thought.

I went back inside to let the car warm a little while continuing to monitor the quickly falling snow through the front window of my toasty living room.

I gathered my plunder: my purse, my catch-all bag filled with fruits, nuts, camera, notebook, water and, on this morning, two emergency blankets.

I patted myself on the back for my weather-preparedness.

Thinking that the car was surely warm, I walked outside carrying my accoutrement in one load.

Again, patting myself for having to make only one trip to the car.

And that my friends, is where my morning began to fall completely and totally wherever it wants to go apart.

I climbed behind the steering wheel and heaved all of my baggage to the passenger's seat.

At some point during the "heaving," I triggered the auto-open on the sunroof.

A few snowflakes landed on me, which I dismissed as blowing snow.

Seconds later, a three inch blanket of snow on the roof of my car fell in my lap, on my head, filling the cup-holders and covering my bags.

My eyelashes were heavy with clinging snow and my once fluffy hair was flattened to my head.

Melting snow ran down my neck and between my shoulder blades like a river of ice.

I refused to go back inside the house and start over.

I snagged one of the blankets buried in the avalanche, unfolded it and placed in the driver's seat.

I climbed back behind the wheel and drove to work with snow melt dripping from said wheel onto my once-dry jeans.

If you are "my friend" on Facebook, you already know how this story ends.

After a better day than the morning forebode, I went home, had my supper and then had myself a huge bowl of snow cream with strawberries.

Take that, Mother Nature!

Reader receives cable bill shock

To the editor:

Just received my latest bill from Time/Warner Cable and I wondered if anyone else was as shocked, and as mad, as I was when they opened it?

I had been paying $72.64 for months, then it jumps to $153.19! When I first came here the bill was little over $55.

We have no choice here, it's Time/Warner if we want TV. We have no option for satellite dishes or antennas.

People like Time/Warner are no better than thieves, as they are taking advantage of people on fixed incomes.

It's not easy to live on Social Security checks. I didn't know, back years ago when I was able to work, how lucky I was, 12 hour shifts at a factory and housecleaning for several families on my off days.

Downtown needs a clean up

To the editor:

My husband Brian Williams & I feel Cynthiana needs to come together as a community to clean up our town. Driving through downtown, buildings are run down, the store fronts look like we are a ghost town. The streets & sidewalks need cleaned. We need to take action.

High school kids need community service hours maybe they could do some of those hours sweeping the streets & sidewalks, or going through the town helping wash windows of businesses in the downtown area.

We also need to pressure the owners of the buildings in town to fix them up to make our town look good so people will want to come here. I don't know about anyone else, but when we have our Taste of Harrison county, Cynthiana Rod Run or other events here in town, I am embarrassed thinking what people are saying about how dirty & run down we are.

Also Ladish road "dump" needs to be cleaned. If we come together & go to a commissioners meeting & make our concerns heard maybe better action will be taken.. Lets make this a town we are proud of..

Drive through downtown Paris & see how clean it is.

We can be too!

A PROSECUTOR'S PERSPECTIVE:

Taking a tour through the criminal court process

Michael Laws
Guest Columnist

Beginning this week, let's take a look at how criminal cases progress through our court system.

When a law enforcement agency learns that an individual has committed a crime, the agency conducts an investigation by collecting all available evidence related to the crime. The city police department, the county sheriff's office, and the Kentucky State Police investigate the majority of the crimes committed in our four-county circuit. The Commonwealth's Attorney's Office does not investigate crimes although we do work closely with law enforcement by providing legal assistance during their felony investigations. After an investigation is complete, law enforcement sends the case to our office for prosecution. Without the work of law enforcement, our office would be unable to hold the defendants in our community accountable for their crimes.

Once an investigation is complete, there are a few ways that a defendant can be charged with a felony. Law enforcement may either arrest a defendant on an arrest warrant issued by a judge or without a warrant. When a defendant is arrested, he or she is taken to jail and is given an opportunity to post bail (also known as bond). If bail is posted, the defendant is released from custody under specific conditions that must be followed. (Laws' Legal Disclaimer:

Under the law, bail is not supposed to be punishment for a crime; its intended purpose is to insure that the defendant makes all future court appearances and follows the orders of the Court.) If the defendant is unable to post bail, he or she remains in jail while the case is pending.

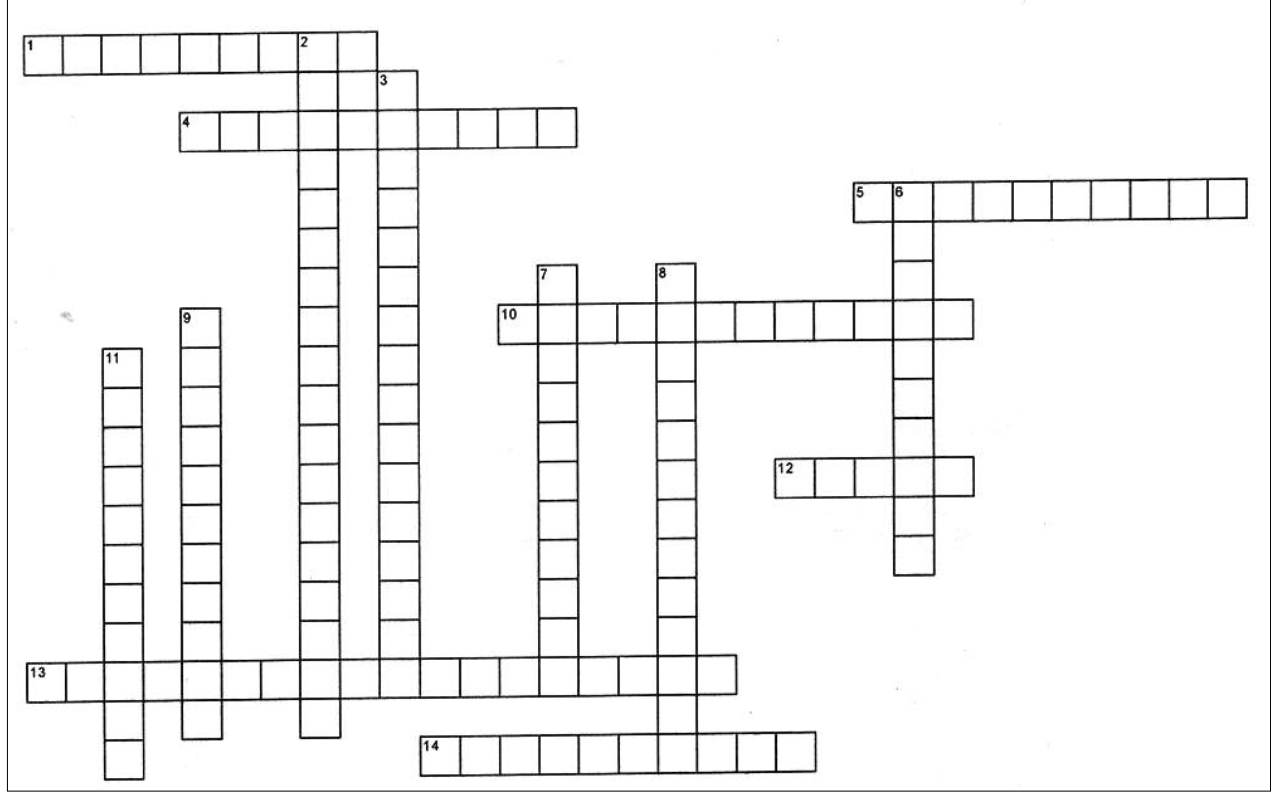

In most instances, after arrest, the defendant appears before the District Court to either to resolve the case if it is a misdemeanor or to determine whether or not there is enough evidence to send the case to the Grand Jury if it is a felony. Law enforcement may also bring a felony case to our office for direct presentation to the Grand Jury. In this instance, the case never goes through the District Court. It is presented directly to the Grand Jury because of the nature of the charges, the urgency of the situation, or the necessity of secrecy in order to protect the victim or witnesses.

You might be thinking, "What exactly is Grand Jury?" The Grand Jury is responsible for determining whether or not there is enough evidence to charge a defendant with a felony in Circuit Court. It is a vital part of the judicial system, but how it operates is often a mystery to the public. Next month, we will examine how a Grand Jury functions. Until then, be sure to give all of our hardworking law enforcement officers a big "thank you." # There is no measles threat in Harrison County, says pediatrician

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

Despite recent news reports on measles cases in California and other pockets of the country, the threat to Harrison County children is minimal, said pediatrician Lauren Blackwell, M.D. of Licking Valley Internal Medicine Associates.

In fact, the numbers of reported cases in the United States, 141 as of last weekend, barely rates as a true outbreak of the virus, she said.

"It's important to remember that measles used to affect millions of young children. The cases reported this year are, in comparison, extremely small. The only reason it's getting noticed now is because childhood vaccinations have reduced cases of measles from millions to just a few hundred," Blackwell said.

In fact, the majority of children who have been diagnosed with the measles in recent weeks are those who did not get a measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine as infants, she said.

The fact that an outbreak of over a hundred cases of the virus has created news headlines is a testament to how effective the vaccine has been since it was introduced in the mid-1960s, Blackwell pointed out. However, the success of vaccines has also created a generation or two of young adults who grew up without the spectre of measles or other childhood diseases in their lives, she said.

The news of these sporadic viral outbreaks, therefore, has generated concerns from adults about their susceptibility to the disease.

It's not impossible, but adults are not at a high risk for developing measles, said Blackwell. If an adult comes into contact with a child that has measles, the likelihood that they will be infected is rare.

"The measles mostly infects children," Blackwell stated. But, she continued, thanks to the MMR vaccine administered to infants and children, its accurate to say that the measles no longer poses a serious threat to children as it once did.

The MMR vaccine even protects children who have not been vaccinated, she said. Because the majority of children around them can't get the virus, the children also do not spread the virus.

"It's called herd protection. Unvaccinated children are not likely to contract the virus because everyone around them is virtually immune," she said.

In her opinion, vaccines are the most significant contribution that medical science has given to society in the last century.

"In my medical training, I receive information on the symptoms for multiple diseases that I'm not likely to see in children because of vaccines," she said.

Unfortunately, a lot of misinformation about childhood vaccinations gained ground with populations of young parents in the last decade.

Blackwell admits to being frustrated when young parents, many of them with educated backgrounds, accept what is being transmitted across the internet over the advice of their own doctors.

In 1998, Andrew Wakefield, a British gastroenterologist, claimed to have found a link between the measles vaccine and autism in children.

A closer look into his claim, according to articles published in The New York Times and National Geographic, revealed that, among other problems with his research, Wakefield was receiving payments from lawyers involved in a lawsuit against a company that produced vaccines.

Further scrutiny into Wakefield's research revealed numerous violations of ethical standards as well as flaws in the research itself. Not only was his study thoroughly debunked and dismissed, the General Medical Society of Britain stripped Wakefield of his license to practice medicine.

"There is plenty of medical research to show that MMR vaccines are unrelated to autism in children," Blackwell said.

And yet, Blackwell still encounters parents who insist that childhood vaccines are dangerous based on those discredited stories and other false claims broadcast on so-called health and wellness sites on the internet.

"There are too many places on the internet that give health advice not based on valid scientific research. And, unfortunately, people wind up with the consequences of paying closer attention to a website, or a politician, than to the advice of their own doctor," Blackwell said.

It is particularly frustrating because nobody, neither doctors, hospitals nor pharmaceutical companies, makes any money on vaccinations.

"Vaccines are an area where health care loses money. But I'd rather that be the case than see viruses return that vaccines eliminated," Blackwell said.

According to recommendations from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), MMR vaccines, as well as a whole battery of other vaccines, should be given to children at 12 months old. An MMR booster is recommended at about age 4.

"If parents want to give their children the best possible protection against measles and other preventable childhood diseases, they should get their children vaccinated," Blackwell said.

Cynthiana man found safe; Search and Rescue volunteers spend seven hours in snow

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

Harrison County Search and Rescue volunteers, along with a search dog, spent seven hours in blizzard conditions and freezing temperatures Monday night trying to locate a Cynthiana man reported missing earlier in the day from Shady Lawn on Pike Street.

Christopher Kennon Cooper, 52, was spotted Tuesday afternoon by Cynthiana Police Officer Jeff Thomas. Cooper was apparently aware that he had been reported missing, but explained that he had been hiding out through the evening at another residence.

Harrison County Search and Rescue Chief Re'Jeana Craft said the volunteer crew was notified of the missing man Monday afternoon.

Due to deteriorating weather conditions,

Cooper's medication requirements and the fact that several hours had elapsed since Cooper was last seen at Shady Lawn, Craft invited an experienced tracking hound to assist with the search.

Cooper was known to leave the Shady Lawn grounds on his own, said Craft, but he always returned for meals and medication. When he failed to do either, it raised concerns for his well-being.

"He was liable to be anywhere. We didn't have an idea about his direction. Boone [the tracking dog] was able to pick up his scent at Shady Lawn and lead us down a path," Craft said.

A tracking hound's scent is apparently keen enough to follow a trail even in heavy snow conditions, her handler explained.

By the time the search got underway, the snowfall was at its height and the temperature was around 17 degrees.

The team of eight search and rescue volunteers spread out on foot along the trail that Boone led them.

In the meantime, city and state road crews were also alerted to be on the lookout for Cooper, who was last seen wearing dark maroon suspender overalls and a red and black flannel jacket.

In one of the lighter moments of the search, Boone stopped at a soda machine outside of Ken's Supermarket and sniffed at the space where drinks were dispensed.

"Assuming Boone was on the right trail, that dog was sharp enough to know that Cooper had stopped there to get a drink," Craft said.

The search was suspended at 11 p.m. just outside of the 3M building near Safety Way. Frigid temperatures and mounting snow drifts were putting the crew and the search dog at risk, the chief said.

Search and rescue was making plans to continue the search

Tuesday morning and had even arranged for additional support from Pendleton County Search and Rescue when city police reported spotting Cooper walking along Walnut Street in good condition.

According to Cooper, he was making plans to move out of his residence at Shady Lawn, which was why he had not returned there Monday afternoon.

He subsequently withdrew from his residence on Pike Street and is no longer under its care.

Snow plows hit the streets early on Monday morning throughout the historic district of downtown Cynthiana in an attempt to stay ahead of the blizzard.

Family's beloved pit bull returned after missing for two years

BY MARLA TONCRAY, THE LEDGER-INDEPENDENT/KENTUCKY PRESS NEWS SERVICE

SARDIS - Two years after going missing, one family's blue nose pit bull has come home.

China is about 5 years old and has been gone from her home in Sardis - a small town on the Mason-Robertson county line - since Jan. 18, 2013. Her owners, Dale, Dina, Austin and Eric Stitt looked tirelessly for China after her disappearance, with no luck. When she disappeared, the family had owned China for two years, after adopting her from the Roberston County Animal Shelter when she was about a year old.

Posters with China's picture were put up around the community, as well as being sent to local businesses, veterinarian clinics and animal shelters.

China is a bit of a celebrity for the Stitt family, having been a Top 10 finalist in the annual Pet Idol contest in 2012.

Dina Stitt said China disappeared after being let out to relieve herself around 7 p.m. Dina said when China didn't scratch on the window to be let back in as was her usual habit, she drove around the small community and outlying areas looking for her until 3 a.m.

"We didn't think we'd ever get her back, but we never gave up hoping," Dina said from her home

On Jan. 13, 2015, Austin Stitt received a text message from a friend about a dog being housed at an animal foster home in Harrison County. The text message included a picture of the dog, which bore a strong resemblance to China.

The Stitts said they pulled up pictures of China on their cell phones and found the one used for the posters. That picture clearly showed China's white markings on her face and chest. It was that picture the family used to help identify the dog at the foster home earlier this month.

Austin went to the foster home near Sunrise, where China had been for two months. Prior to that, she had been at the Harrison County Animal Shelter for three months. Beyond that, the family has no idea where China has been since she disappeared in 2013.

Austin said when China saw him, she walked around him three times, then laid down on top of his feet. This action alone was unusual for China according to the foster family, who said she wouldn't have anything to do with people.

"I kinda had doubts, she was bigger than she was when she left," Austin said.

She was being called Maggie by the foster family, but the Stitts said she answers to China now. She is also hiding her rawhide bones around the house, a habit she had when she was younger.

"She's just like she used to be," Dina said. And proving the point of knowing her owners, China jumped up into the tractor with Dale for a ride around the farm shortly after her return, something she always enjoyed doing before her disappearance. The only thing she seems to have forgotten are the tricks the family taught her when she was younger.

Although the family has no idea where China was after her disappearance, they are grateful she has come home.

"We've had tons of well wishes on having her back," Dale said.

Yarnell performs with All-State orchestra in Louisville

Stephen Yarnell, senior trumpet student at Harrison County High School, was selected to perform with Kentucky's finest musicians.

He participated as a member of the Kentucky Music Educators Association All-State Orchestra and performed on Saturday, Feb. 7, at the Kentucky Center for the Arts in Louisville.

Each year, the Commonwealth's music teachers gather in Louisville for their yearly in-service conference, which includes the rehearsals and performances of the All-State bands, orchestras and choirs.

The students selected to the All-State bands and orchestras undergo an intensive two-part live audition process, first at the district level, then at the state level.

Yarnell's third chair placement in the orchestra ranks him as one of the top 10 high school trumpeters in the state.

"We could not be more proud of this young man," said HCHS band director John Merz. "He exemplifies the qualities we stress in our program: Hard work, dedication, fine musicianship, honesty and integrity. Stephen has really stepped up his game in the past year and you can tell in his performance. I'm not sure there is anything he can't play."

The KMEA All-State Orchestra was led by the young, but talented conductor, Sey Ahn.

The orchestra performed the fourth movement of the "Symphonie Fantastique," by Hector Berlioz, as well as two movements from "Swan Lake" and the finale from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony in E Minor.

Indian Creek Homemakers hosts program with Cynthiana Hospice of the Bluegrass.

Indian Creek Homemakers, along with Hospice, presents The Conversation Project

The February 2015 meeting of the Indian Creek Homemaker Club provided a special opportunity for all members and guests. The club hosted the nationally acclaimed program, “The Conversation Project,” facilitated by the Hospice of the Bluegrass Cynthiana Office staff who are experts in end-of-life care and issues. The Conversation Project is a program dedicated to helping people talk with loved ones and doctors about their wishes for end-of-life care long before it is needed. The information also contributes to the assurance that desires will be respected. However, much of the shared information also can contribute to the assurance that after death burdens and grief of a person’s loved ones will be minimized. The Winter Weather Policy of Harrison County Extension Homemakers is that if there is no school, there will be no meetings. Originally scheduled for Feb. 5, the club had to postpone this meeting until Feb. 12 due to a school snow date. This change of date affected the attendance of this special meeting. However, over 29 people came and were provided the information and guides which could facilitate the decisions and conversations on this important matter. The Hospice of the Bluegrass Cynthiana Office staff indicated that they are willing to facilitate this discussion during other community and Homemaker club meetings. For more information about “The Conversation Project,” contact Kelly Kendall at 859-234-6462. The Indian Creek Homemaker Club makes their special programs, such as this one, available to potential members and invites them to their monthly meetings scheduled the first Thursday of each month beginning at 10:30 a.m. The Club president is Karen Creger who can be reached at 859-588-9356.

Woman’s Club of Harrison Co. holds February luncheon

The Woman’s Club of Harrison County met Friday, Feb. 13 for their monthly luncheon and meeting. Anna Ruth McLoney presided over the event. She welcomed club members and led all in the Pledge of Allegiance. Sue Burrier shared Spiritual Values and offered the blessing of the meal. The luncheon was catered by Layne Tussey. She served a meal of pork cutlettes, mashed potatoes, broccoli casserole, waldorf salad and dessert. Bonnie Teater introduced musical guest Dawn Arnold. Her musical selections were a collection of Rosemary Clooney’s songs, the Carpenters, and from the musical Les Miserables. She sang favorite songs entitled, “You’ll Never Know How Much I love you,” “Sisters,” “Rainy Days and Monday,” as well as “On My Own” from Les Miserables. Cheryl Case introduced Jessica Barnes, horticulture agent with the Harrison County Extension Office. Barnes’ topic was “Preparing the Outdoors for Spring.” She focused on three themes of importance to all club members - lawn maintenance, flower and vegetable gardening, and tree and shrub care. Following her presentation, club members were provided an opportunity to discuss specific garden issues and were invited to contact Barnes for more specific help. After the program, there was a brief business meeting. Teater read the minutes from the December meeting for Kaye McCauley who was unable to attend. Virgie Wells gave the treasurer’s report. McLoney reported during the new business section of the meeting that the make-up date for the January meeting would be June 12. The January meeting was cancelled due to weather conditions. The March meeting of the will feature Garnett Furnish for the program and Beth Laytart for the musical presentation.

Annual all-chapter social planned for Feb. 23

Omega chapter of Beta Sigma Pi held its monthly meeting on Feb. 2 at the home of Barbara Snopek. Nine members were present. Favorite family occasions were discussed. President Charlene Dawson presented communication from International. Each year, grants and funds are given world wide to organizations and individuals for various situations. These include: Endowment fund, Loan fund, Disaster Relief fund, Breast Cancer Research, Health Research, Scholarship fund, and others. International is proposing a new fund to support, which is the Harvesters Snack Pak Program. This is food to take home for the weekends for children in need. The chapter voted in support of this. Omega also sends yearly checks to the Endowment fund and the Scholarship fund. Local correspondence included an invitation from Xi Delta Pi for the annual all-chapter social, which they will host this year. The date was moved to Monday, Feb. 23 at the Hospice building. Dawson planned a meeting of the past three presidents-- Pat Terhune, Bonnie Teater, and herself to present a slate of new officers to be presented at the March meeting. Social chair Judy Judy announced a couple’s Valentine dinner to be held at the Vault on Saturday, Feb. 14 at 6:30. Service chair Rosemary Lucas thanked all members for each contributing a case of food for the local food pantry. Also, a meal to be served to the residents of Clifton Village was planned for April 18. Food gift certificates at a local grocery will be given as Bingo prizes. Teater presented information from the Grey Book on nominations, elections, rules and regulations, and installation of officers. Teater was presented a beautiful yearbook by Barbara Snopek for the year she served as president. Linda Root presented the evening’s program on Family Trees. She talked about pedigrees, charts, and history, saying we are all part of the Cynthiana branch of Beta Sigma Phi. All past members are a part of this tree, even if they are not with us anymore. With new bonds of friendship, we find them or they find us. We need to enjoy each other now. Sisters strengthen the heart. The March meeting will be at the home of Cheryl Case, with Nancy Deitemeyer in charge of the program.

MUSEUM MUSINGS

\ Cynthiana Democrat* - “That Cold Spell - Col. W.M. Moore, of this city, kept tab on the extraordinary cold weather that prevailed here from Dec. 7, 1917 to Feb. 7, 1918, two months exactly. From the morning of Dec. 7, 1917 to Feb. 7, 1918, there were 20 days when the mercury was below zero. On several days it was below zero for half of the day and once or twice all day long. During the two months there were 12 different and distinct falls of snow. . .Many days the surface of the snow, covered with sleet, was so thick that walking was a hard proposition and those who had to be out on hillsides had the time of their lives. For over a week at a stretch the people of Cynthiana were obliged to walk in the middle of the street, the sidewalks being too dangerous. Sleighing was good nearly all the time. Coasting was fine. One evening a bob-sled started at Wm. Addams gate on Elmarch Avenue, came around the corner of Clarence LeBus home, onto Pike Street and then down beyond the VanHook Hollow, with a push of about 15 foot up that hill, it came on down Pike Street at tremendous speed and stopped in front of Whitt Restaurant, about 50 yards from Main Street. That is perhaps the longest coast ever made in this city.” (2015 comparisons??)

HMH outpatient services expanded to include Pain Management Clinic

Harrison Memorial Hospital opened the HMH Outpatient Services: Pain Management Clinic on Feb. 16. The pain management clinic will diagnose acute and chronic pain and create individualized treatment plans for patients based on a number of considerations, including the cause and level of pain.

Diagnoses treated at the center include neck and back pain, headaches, fibromyalgia, chronic pelvic pain, Complex Regional Pain Syndrome (CRPS) and nerve damage, as well as pain associated with arthritis, muscle spasms and shingles.

The clinic will be staffed by Dr. Anjum Bux, who is board-certified pain management specialist. Bux is a graduate of Centre College in Danville, Ky. He earned his medical degree from St. George’s University School of Medicine, Grenada, West Indies, in 1998. He completed his residency in anesthesiology at the University of Kentucky, in Lexington, in 2002.

Bux has been treating patients in need of pain management for more than 12 years. He is board certified in anesthesia and is a diplomat of the American Academy of Pain Management.

“People who have acute or chronic pain that is preventing them from living normal lives may be good candidates for this program,” says Dr. Bux. “We offer some of the most advanced treatments available today for pain management. These treatments are more tolerable and less invasive than in the past.”

Bux will create a plan of care tailored specifically to meet your needs—through medication, interventional procedures and physical therapy. He commonly performs interventional procedures, such as epidural steroid injections, facet joint injections, selective nerve root blocks and radiofrequency ablations.

HMH Outpatient Services: Pain Management Clinic is committed to patients for the duration of their pain and compliance with their care plan. The clinic establishes an agreement with the patient that holds him or her accountable to the use of only one pharmacy, one prescribing physician, keeping medications safe from loss or theft, pill counts and urine drug testing. And, remaining in communication with primary care physicians, the center will provide balanced pain treatment for the whole community.

“There is a significant need for this type of service in our community,” says Sheila Currans, HMH Chief Executive Officer. “We are very pleased to provide local, safe and effective pain treatment for patients and their primary care physicians. The last thing these patients need is to travel long distances for treatment when they’re already in pain.”

Ask your primary care physician about a referral to see Dr. Bux. For more information, call 859-235-3724.

Skunks are on the move

We just returned from Taylorsville and on the drive home Andy remarked, "Wow, we have passed four dead skunks!"

We don't see them on the farm as much as we used to because of the dogs, although I have been getting whiffs of them for about a week now.

The lightbulb moment: It is mating season for skunks and they are on the move.

A few years back there was a skunk sniffing about under some pines in the lower pasture and it was evident from its movements and from its awareness (or lack thereof) of its surroundings that this creature knew it had the advantage.

Their eyesight is poor so sneaking up on him to get a photograph was possible but it made me realize that startling a skunk is probably not a good idea.

Skunks are mostly nocturnal, nomadic and solitary...except during their mating season.

We don't see them too often, except as road kill, but when we do, it can be memorable.

When it comes to the stripped skunks in our area, their general behavior consists of sleeping in some sort of den during the day.

We have had skunks at the farm take up residence in old fox dens, ground hog holes and in the barn.

Skunks are typically active from dusk to dawn, which is a little odd because of their poor eyesight.

They have a good sense of smell, however, and rummage around at night for a meal of small rodents, grubs and other meaty insects.

A rotten stump with a host of living creatures working to expedite the process of decay is a treat if you are a skunk.

Males are polygamous so the females end up being the sole caregivers of their litters that average one to eight babies. Baby skunks, called kittens, are born in April and May with a gestation period that lasts about 63 days. If you do the math most skunks are pretty busy right now.

Here are some things to be aware of if you know you have skunks in your area.

Skunks have abnormally large musk glands on both sides of their rear end.

The musk has an oily component to it so it sticks.

Skunks have amazing accuracy when it comes to fending off those that threaten them.

They can hit their mark perfectly at six feet, and have generally good aim up to 20 feet.

If you come across a skunk and she starts stamping her front feet, run.

Just before they release their musk they give a warning stomp, rise up on their front legs, left up their rear and bull's eye, you've been skunked.

If you receive a direct hit, it is not comparable to the general skunk smell. Rather the stench is a combination of burning rubber, sharp, fresh garlic and a little sulfur.

The animal lives up to its Latin name, Mephitis mephitis, which translates as "bad odor; bad odor."

Their stripes are quite distinctive, some almost non-existent while other look nearly all white.

Males roam about (and get hit by cars at a much higher rate this time of the year) quite a bit during mating season but females usually stay within a half a mile of their den.

Buck, our old red heeler, got a direct hit to the face, once.

I sent him on a desperate attempt to rub it off; he effectively spread the oil all over the driveway and garage door stoop.

We bathed him in Dawn, peroxide and baking soda multiple times before it was even bearable for us all.

If you do get a hit, the mixture is a quarter cup of baking soda, 2 tablespoons of Dawn dishwashing detergent and a pint of peroxide.

Use it right away and it will work better than most other concoctions.

“I want to be like Michael”

By LARRY BISHOP, GUEST COLUMNIST
As I write this article, the University of Kentucky Wildcat basketball team is experiencing an undefeated season. Every fan has a favorite Wildcat player of the ten who platoon under Coach CaliparVs system Recently a close friend gave me a book entitled, . In one chapter, the author lists who he thought were the ten best University of Kentucky players.
Kyle Macy was number 10, Ralph Beard was number nine and Alex Groza was eighth. They were followed by Tony Delk at number seven, Kenny “Sky”Walker at number six, and Cotton Nash as the fifth greatest player in U.K. history. Jack Givens was recognized at number four; Wallace “Wah Wah”Jones as third on the list, and Jamal Mashburn as number two. The book’s number one pick as the greatest player to wear the blue and white, Dan Issel. This listing I am sure could stimulate some serious debate between Wildcat fans. My favorite Wildcat player, Michael Kidd-Gilchrist. Kidd-Gilchrist was a second round draft pick in the 2012 National Basketball Association draft, after he and his teammates won a national championship at Kentucky. The Feb. 5th issue of has a wonderful article on Michael, well worth reading. This article mentions some adversities that Michael has encountered during his lifetime. His basic jump shot was never recognized as being either pretty in form or sufficient in scoring. After a year of difficulty in the N.B.A., he spent hours working with a shooting instructor to possess a shot that has been productive for him. He also spent a tremendous amount of time and energy working on a speech problem that he had been intimidated by since early childhood. He has masterfully overcome this challenge as well, and now spends time working with children who are confronted with this problem. I appreciate Michael because he was able to look at himself, never being satisfied, and take steps to improve his life and career.

Ash Wednesday is the beginning mark of our Lenten journey. I hope that your 40-day journey between Ash Wednesday until Easter will be a meaningful one. It is a time for every believer to look inside one’s self, as we participate in the process of becoming better persons. It is not enough to simply look into our lives and see some changes that need to be made. It is not a matter of just giving up some insignificant items for Lent. It involves making some changes, in our attitudes, our actions, or our words. It has to do with how we treat those around us, and those we encounter on a day to day basis. The old commercial of years ago, “I want to be like Mike,” referring to Michael Jordon. I want to be like Michael Kidd-Gilchrist, who recognizes what he can do to improve his life and does it. In his own words, “Everybody has flaws, and I’m a prime example. But this is me. I’ve come a long way.” May you and I travel a long inspirational way in this season of Lent.

The Berry Christian Church members celebrated Go Red for Heart Awareness with ladies in red.

WEAR RED DAY. The Cynthiana Presbyterian Church observed National Wear Red Day on Sunday, Feb. 8. Red was worn to bring attention to the problem of heart disease in women. Ten years ago, the American Heart Association discovered that heart disease killed more women than men. And it took more women’s lives than all forms of cancer combined.

Adventures in faith from the cauliflower fields

I recently went on what I call a faith adventure.
These are never planned, except maybe by God. This particular adventure began as I set out to go to a woman’s house for an interview for the newspaper and ended up stuck in sand.
I’ve learned a lot from past faith adventures, such as never have less than a half of a tank of gas. I learned that when we still lived in California. That day I was with my oldest daughter, and I think we had gone to the mall.
Also that day, the pope was in our area, and the roads surrounding where he was were blocked off, which I didn’t know until we were on the way back and I ended up in the cauliflower fields -- running frighteningly low on gas. Also, because of all the detours, I was running late to pick up my youngest daughter from preschool. This was in the days before cell phones, so all I could do was pray that (a.) I wouldn’t run out of gas and (b.) Laura wasn’t freaking out because I was late.

Praying all the way, we made it out of the cauliflower fields, the pope had his Mass and Laura didn’t even know I was late. Since then, I’ve never actually run out of gas except maybe two or five times.
Another faith adventure occurred when we first moved to Florida and I took the girls shopping in Orlando and accidentally ended up in the one area my husband told me to stay away from. My girls ratted me out, telling my husband, “Mom took us to see the hookers.”
And another time Laura and I went to Disney World not knowing that day was one of our annual pass blackout days. Instead, we went to the mall where I got a flat tire, had no cash or phone, and we walked through a field to find an ATM to get money to call a tow truck to take my car to the tire place, and we got a bunch of sharp stickers in our socks.

I call these faith adventures because they’re not really crises, although they could become one, I suppose. Mostly they’re just annoyances that cause me to throw up my hands and say, “God, when you’re done laughing could you help me out here?”
My recent adventure featured the front end of my car nose-first in soft sand somewhere in the woods.
Some of you know that I notoriously give bad directions and follow even the best directions badly. I keep thinking I’ll outgrow it, but so far I haven’t. So, thinking I was following directions to a woman’s house, I found myself on a deep sandy path-that’s-not-a-road, and the further I went the more I thought it best to stop, turn around and find a paved road.

So, of course I trudged ahead.
That’s when I saw a gravel road parallel to the path I was on and decided to cut across a clearing in the woods to get to it.
Now, I’m not a total idiot, thank God. When I realized I wasn’t going to make it without destroying my front bumper (and my nearly 40-year marriage), I put on the brakes, put the car in reverse and dug myself deeper into the sand.
And there I sat. And there I prayed, but not before I laughed. It was so ridiculously my own fault, but God was mercifully kind anyway. I had a cell phone, a free roadside assistance plan, a book to read and even a cup of coffee to drink while I waited for the tow truck to rescue me.
The woman I was supposed to meet with graciously rescheduled and a bunch of Facebook friends offered me words of encouragement after I posted a photo of my stuck car on my page.

If it’s true that all of life illustrates biblical truth, then this adventure does too. It reminded me that God says, “I am teaching you the way of wisdom; I am guiding you on straight paths” (Proverbs 4:11).
The lesson? Don’t go off the straight path and you won’t end up in trouble. Don’t ignore that voice that tells you’re going the wrong way. And make sure you understand the directions, and if you lack wisdom, ask for it (James 1:5).
Also, remember to pack snacks.

GRACE NOTES

Easy, delicious meals that make hearts happy

(Family Features) Did you know that small, positive additions to your diet and lifestyle can help promote a healthier heart? Instead of denying yourself the delicious flavors you crave, try weaving a few subtle changes into your menu and you can healthfully and conveniently meet your wellness goals.
Show your heart some love
Besides giving meals a satisfying boost, soy-based foods are a heart-healthy addition to your diet. According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), a diet containing 25 grams of soy protein per day, accompanying other foods that are low in saturated fats and cholesterol, may decrease the chance of heart disease.
“Soy protein is a very high quality protein, equivalent to egg or milk protein,” said Mindy Kurzer, Ph.D. and professor with the Department of Food Science and Nutrition at the University of Minnesota. “Soyfoods, such as soymilk, have been shown to lower dietary cholesterol and saturated fat, decreasing blood cholesterol concentrations and improving heart health.”
Sprinkle soy into your diet, easily
Available in many delicious forms, soy-based foods and beverages make the swap towards healthier options a snap. Try some of these meal ideas to help you cut calories, saturated fat and cholesterol from your diet:
• Breakfast: Take on the day by enjoying a fruit and soy-milk blended smoothie for breakfast. Soymilk is the only plant-based dairy alternative with an average of 7 grams of protein per serving plus calcium, potassium, and vitamins A and D.
• Lunch: Opt for a juicy veggie burger - easy to cook in just a few minutes. Or try this flavorful recipe for Tuna Edamame Salad, which allows you to take in all the healthy benefits of these young green soybeans with a quick and easy lunch. Did you know one cup of edamame contains 17 grams of protein?

• Snack: Throw a protein-packed nutrition bar in your car, bag or purse so you can have a healthy snack while running errands. (But read the label to make sure it contains soy protein and isn’t loaded with sugar.)
• Dinner: Load up on vegetables and protein with a tasty and easy stir fry using marinated tofu strips. Or cholesterol-free soy “crumbles” can quickly and easily be added to favorites including pasta sauce, soup, chili and tacos.
To find more recipes featuring soy protein, visit www.soyfoods.org or www.soyconnection.com.

Breds split with Mason Co. and Paris, face Montgomery Friday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

After an exciting junior varsity game won in two overtimes, 61-55, by Mason County, the big crowd on the Hilltop was pumped for a tight game between the two varsity squads.

The crowd got what they paid for but it took the Thorobreds a quarter to deliver their end of the bargain.

Once again, Harrison County got off to a slow start caused largely by eight turnovers and poor shot selection.

The visiting Royals jumped out to a 20-to-7 lead after one quarter behind their big men, seniors Dorian Henry and Jake O'Mara.

The pair combined for 13 of the 20 points in the opening period.

In addition, O'Mara, who is going to Murray State to play football, used his physical play to push senior Trenton Thompson off the block on offense.

The second period saw the Thorobreds heat up with a balanced scoring attack and much better ball handling. They out-scored Mason County by a 19 to seven margin to cut the Royals lead to 27-26 at the half.

The Thorobreds' defense limited Henry and O'Mara to two points in the quarter and no one stepped up for the Royals to take up the slack in scoring.

The third quarter saw Henry exert his considerable skills around the basket as the Royals sprinted out to out score the Breds 20 to nine in the period.

The 6-foot-5 forward scored 12 points in the period, grabbed four rebounds and was an intimidator on the defense.

sive end.

The Breds battled back in the final period but could only get the game back as close as eight points. Henry continued to dominate play.

In the end, Harrison County just did not have an answer on this night for Henry. The Royals won the game 59-49.

"We showed that we could play with Mason County (24-2) tonight," noted Coach Larry Kendall. "We just did not have a way to combat Henry. We will work on that and try to be ready should we face them again."

The Thorobreds had three players in double figures with the balanced attack.

Thompson and senior guard D.J. Jenkins each scored 16 points and senior Robbie Stroub added 10 points.

Thompson led the Thorobreds in rebounds with seven.

Harrison County was out-rebounded 29-19 for the game after leading by one at the half.

Henry was the only Royal in double figures as he had 28 points and 12 rebounds. O'Mara battled foul trouble to score nine points and grab eight boards.

On Saturday night, the Thorobreds traveled to Paris and won a hard-fought game with the Greyhounds, 59-49.

The Breds pulled this game out despite struggling from the floor.

Harrison County used superior free throw shooting (22 of 30) to put the game into the victory column for a 14-13 season mark.

The loss leaves the Greyhounds with a 15-9 record.

Thompson hit a three before the first quarter buzzer that gave Harrison County the lead for good.

This started a 12-two Harrison County run that pushed the lead to 25-15 a couple of minutes before the end of the second period.

Neil Furnish hired as HCHS football coach

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Harrison County High School's Class of 2000 graduate Neil Furnish was selected last week to become the head football coach at his alma mater.

Furnish, 33, has most recently been a member of the Bourbon County High School coaching staff. They have won two regional championships and a regional runner-up in the past three years.

Furnish has coached at Bourbon County since 2012 as head freshman coach, pass game coordinator, quarterbacks' coach and defensive backs' coach.

Bourbon County's overall record during this time was 35-6. He was also the head track coach in 2014 at Bourbon County.

Furnish spent seven years as an assistant in Harrison County serving as offensive coordinator, head freshman coach, junior varsity coach, as well as coaching the offensive line, wide receivers, defensive backs and quarterbacks.

He was also the strength and conditioning coach from 2008-2010.

Furnish teaches algebra at Bourbon County High School.

He attended Eastern Kentucky University after graduating from high school, playing as a preferred walk-on as a freshman for the Colonels. He received his teaching certificate from Midway College in 2012.

Assistant coaches are still in the talking stages except for the weight training coaches, Josh Ashbrook and Rob McCann.

"I am really happy with the work that these two coaches are doing," noted Furnish.

There was a meeting with the players scheduled for Monday morning but it was postponed until school is back in session.

Furnish has been married to his wife Amy for 10 years. They have three children, Kaitlynn, Samantha and Keller. He is the son of Jim and Teresa Furnish.

Fillies lose two more close games, finish with Indians on Friday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The final scores do not represent the closeness or the intensity of play but are losses nevertheless. The Harrison County Fillies fell to a season mark of 8-20 with home losses to Woodford County and East Jessamine last week.

On Wednesday, the Fillies trailed by seven at the end of the first period and, though they managed to cut into the lead in each quarter, could not catch the Lady Yellowjackets of Woodford County.

Senior forward Chelsey Ford led the Woodford County scoring with 21 points and dominated the boards early for 10 rebounds.

Ford's damage was not limited to the offensive end or rebounding as she was intimidating inside as well.

The athletic Ford blocked several shots and altered others as she was a demon on the defensive side.

Woodford County had two others in double figures with junior guard Caitlin Ferguson scoring 17 points and senior guard Anastayzia Reed adding 11.

Ferguson was particularly damaging in the fourth quarter when the Fillies had to foul to regain possessions.

In this final period, Ferguson made 10 of 12 free tosses to preserve the Lady Yellowjackets' victory margin of 62-51.

Woodford County made 23 of 31 free throws for the game while the Fillies connected on eight of 14.

Woodford County was also successful on seven of 13 three-point tries while the Fillies made only three of 13.

Harrison County out-rebounded Woodford County 26-25 and made four more field goals, but could not overcome the free throw difference.

Taylor Reffett had perhaps her finest night this season as she scored 18 points before she fouled out late in the contest.

Chelsea Ingram made 11 points before fouling out as the Fillies put two players into double figures.

Fouling was a problem for Harrison County as the Fillies lost three

Larger squad competes Saturday in Mason County indoor track event

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

A larger group of Harrison County High School athletes traveled to Mason County Saturday to compete in the indoor track meet.

The meet featured nine girls' teams and 10 boys' so it was a good test for the athletes.

Field events were held along with hurdles and running events so the competition was similar to a spring meet.

"We took more athletes including some freshmen," stated Coach Danny Simpson. "It is competition as well as good practice. The weather gave us some concern so we left before the meet was over, which could have affected our point totals."

Senior Derek Nunnolley led the way for the Thorobreds as he took first place in the 55M hurdles in a personal best time of :08.22 and a third place in the 55M dash.

Austin Short finished second in the 400M dash as he continues to have a strong winter in this event. Shane Palmer ran seventh in the 800M run and ran well in the 1600M run.

J.J. Willis slipped and fell in the 55M dash or the Breds showing would have been even better.

The Breds finished sixth behind Erlanger Lloyd, Mason County, Boone County, Ft. Knox and Perry County Central.

Archbishop Moeller, Lexington Christian, Rockcastle County, and West Carter all finished well behind the Thorobreds.

The Fillies ran the meet without their leading scorer, Cassidy Cook, who is out with an injury.

Still, the Harrison County girls finished fifth of the nine teams in the meet.

Rockcastle County won by a

MIKE'S MINUTE

Good things going on in Harrison County

I heard the other day that some people consider the Democrat to be filled with negative news so this week I will be all positive.

The only question I have for the people who think and say this is have you paid attention to the world lately?

The Harrison County Middle School cheerleaders were repeat Bluegrass Conference winners along with winning the Region and finishing third in the state. This competition over the weekend again established this group of girls as a dominant force in the middle school cheer circles. The track team has already established itself as a team to contend with this season with the sterling performances that they have had already in the young indoor season. Kassidy Cook has already established three new school indoor records and has an excellent supporting cast. The Harrison County wrestlers finished only three points from winning the Region 8 tournament in Belfry Saturday. Eleven wrestlers and two alternates qualified for the state tournament, which will be held this weekend at the Alltech Arena. Harrison County's bowlers did quite well at the state tournament last Thursday and Friday. Shaylee Carter finished 15th in the girls' singles and Greg Dick was 22nd in the boys' singles on Thursday. Friday the Harrison County girls finished fourth in the team competition for a great wrap up to the season. On Wednesday, Neil Furnish was introduced as the new Harrison County football coach during the break between the first and second periods of the Thorobreds game with Mason County. Neil brings a lot of experience as an assistant at both Bourbon County and Harrison County along with youthful enthusiasm. Neil was joined on the hardwood Wednesday by his wife Amy and their three children Kaitlynn, Samantha and Keller. It is great to have Neil back in the Harrison County system. He was also on hand to see his nephew, Isaac, make one of the baskets in the second and third grade exhibition at halftime. The beautiful weather that we are having will make it difficult for the basketball teams to get any practice in before Friday's games at home with Montgomery County. Both teams are now looking to the 38th District tournament with a positive showing against the Indians and Lady Indians. I feel good about the district chances for both teams.

Harrison County wrestlers second in Region 8, sending 11 to state

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER When most teams in any sport finish second in the region, it is a cause for celebration. That may not be so true for the Harrison County Thorobreds wrestling squad. After having their sights set on Johnson Central, to finish only three points behind them was disappointing for the Thorobreds. "We are happy to finish second but losing to Johnson Central by three points is heart-breaking," said Coach Luke Tucker. "We are extremely happy to have 11 wrestlers going to state. Colby Adams and Malcolm Walker had their best tournament but just barely missed qualifying. But on the other hand, Austin Harless, Sean Mullikin and Oakie Barnes wrestled very well and were pleasant surprises. "The hard part of this is if we would have won one more match or they would have lost one more we are region champs," Tucker concluded. Michael Mattox at 113 lbs. and 220 lbs. Kellon Williams were region champions. Williams won three matches by a fall. The two champions totalled 50 team points for the Breds. Johnson Central's winning total for the meet was 241 with Harrison County right behind with 238. Montgomery County, one of the pretournament favorites, was a distant third with 169 followed by Bourbon County more than 100 points behind the Breds and Sheldon Clark. Ashland Paul Blazer, Pikeville, Pike County Central, Belfry, Perry County Central, Letcher County Central, Boyd County and Phelps also competed in the Region 8 meet. Nathan Lopez in the 132 lbs. class, Chase Highlander at 120 lbs. and Noah Mitchell at 145 lbs. each finished second. Also, 106 lbs Brent Hudgins, 170 lbs Colin Coy, and 195 lbs Mullikin each finished third. Mark Taylor in the 160 lbs class was fourth along with Harless and Barnes. Clay Arthur and Adams brought home the fifth place ribbons from the Belfry event. The Thorobreds will make the short trip to the Alltech Arena this Friday to begin the two-day state championship meet.

HCMS eighth grade Colts finish season with Sweet 16 appearance

By MIKE ALDRIDGE, SPORTS WRITER Only a shot that rimmed in and out kept the Harrison County Colts from advancing to the Elite Eight in the KBA Middle School State Tournament. The tournament, which was held in Lexington, saw the Colts advance into the Sweet 16 with wins in two pool play games and two tournament victories. Harrison County won pool play games over E.J. Hayes of Lexington, 50-39, and South Laurel, 44-42, to advance into the tournament. Spencer Free with 24 points and Quenton Turley with 12 points were the leading scorers in the Friday game with E. J. Hayes. Free again led the scoring with 20 points in the South Laurel contest followed by Turley's 10 points. The Colts were given a No. 7 seed in the Scott County region. Logan County, which was seeded 10th, was the first victim in the tournament as the Colts took a one-point lead at the half and expanded it to a 46-31 win. Free with 21 points and Turley with 14 points led the way for the Colts. This advanced the Colts to Sunday morning where they faced the NO. 2 seed Sebastian Middle of Breathitt County. The Colts got off to a slow start in this contest but a change to man-to-man defense sparked them in the second quarter for a 31-29 halftime lead. Harrison County outscored Breathitt County in the third and fourth quarters to take the 61-54 victory. Free led the way with 25 points and Tyler Linville scored 11 points. The first game for the Colts in the Sweet 16 was against Lexington Traditional Magnet School. The Magnet School led by eight points going into the last period but the Colts battled their way to a chance to win as time expired. Free's shot rolled in and out and the Colts lost a heartbreaker, 52-51. Free was again the leading scorer with Turley added 16 points. The final game was with Morton Middle of Lexington and the Colts were mentally and physically fatigued losing 67-49. Free was the only Colt in double figures with 28 points. "We did much better than anyone predicted," noted Coach Glenn Lonaker. "We had a shot at the No. 1 team in Lexington and just missed winning the game. I am extremely proud of the boys." The Harrison County Middle School Colts finished the season with a 20-8 record. Scott County Middle School won the tournament defeating the No. 1 seed Knox Central 62-53. Knox Central entered the championship game with an undefeated record.

players to fouls committing 22 personal fouls on the night compared to 15 for Woodford County.

The win improved Woodford County's record to 12-15 for the season.

Friday's game with East Jessamine was a copy of Wednesday's game as the Lady Jaguars jumped out to a first-quarter lead and led for the entire game winning, 60-48.

East Jessamine was playing without injured starter, Sarah Rainwater, who averages 16 points per game.

Rainwater's replacements did quite well as senior guard Leighanne Haddix scored five points and eighth grader Hayley Harrison chipped in with seven.

The Lady Jaguars were led by junior Emma Young, one of the top players in the 12th region.

Young scored a double-double chipping in with 15 points and 11 rebounds.

Two of Rainwater's fellow seniors also picked up their games to score in double figures as center Savannah Carr scored 13 and guard Emilie Hatfield doubled her average by scoring 10 points.

Harrison County had the top scorer in the game as junior Madison Philpott showed just how good she can be. She scored 20 points and had eight rebounds. Philpott sliced through the defense for baskets or hit pull-up jumpers on her way to her career high.

Reffett was also in double figures with 10 points. Madison Kellione and Ingram scored eight points for the Fillies.

Personal fouls were once again a problem for the Fillies. Harrison County committed 18 fouls resulting in 26 free throws for East Jessamine.

The Lady Jaguars were successful on 21 tries. East Jessamine committed 11 fouls, which led to only seven free throws for the Fillies. Harrison County made four of the seven.

Rebounding was even at 28 each while the Fillies made 17 turnovers to 15 for East Jessamine.

The win gives East Jessamine a 17-8 record for the season.

The Fillies will host Montgomery County at 6 p.m. Friday in the first game of the girl/boy doubleheader on the Hilltop. The 38th District will begin at Robertson County on Monday with Harrison County taking on Nicholas County at 6 p.m.

Breds

Harrison County pushed the lead out to 31-17 early into the third period. However, Paris junior Wan Dumpford led the Paris squad back to within three points at 32-29.

Stroub made a lay up to stop the run and the two teams exchanged baskets for the remainder of the period.

The fourth period saw the Thorobreds push out to a nine-point advantage.

The Greyhounds cut the lead to as close as four on a couple of occasions.

With only 1:25 left in the game, the Greyhounds had cut the lead to four. They had possession when Thorobred junior guard, Brock Jenkins, made a key steal and converted a lay up for a six-point Thorobreds' lead.

The play deflated the home team and they would not score again in the contest.

Senior guard D.J. Jenkins made four straight free throws to close out the game for the Breds. Jenkins made 15 of 18 free throws in the ball game.

Thompson led all scorers with a double-double of 24 points and 11 rebounds. Jenkins added 19 as he was the only other Thorobreds in double figures.

Paris had two players in double figures as well with James Clark and Koebe Garrard each scoring 13 points.

Harrison County's last regular season game will be Friday night when they host Montgomery County (15-11) at 8 p.m. This is the second half of the girl/boy doubleheader. The Breds will open tournament play Monday night in Robertson County with an 8 p.m. tip off with Nicholas County (10-17).

Stop smoking—no ifs, ands, or butts! Smoking is one of the top controllable risk factors for heart disease.

Along with a healthy diet of veggies, fruit, whole grains and fish, go nuts! Walnuts, for instance, are rich in omega-3 fatty acids, which help to decrease inflammation in the arteries surrounding your heart, and keep it functioning longer and better

DE-STRESS YOUR HEART. Unplug yourself from the news cycle and your email. It's good for you and your ticker. And that begins with your smartphone. Start turning it off for 15 minutes at a time and work up to an hour a day to reduce stress. Instead, put your hands to work and your mind will unwind. Engaging in activities like knitting, sewing, and crocheting helps relieve stress and does your ticker a world of good. For the "uncrafty" lot who don't do needles, a jigsaw puzzle works great too.

LOL. Not in an email, not on Twitter or Facebook, but really: laugh out loud. Whether you like watching Family Guy or Seinfeld reruns, if it gets you chuckling, it's good for your heart. Research from the University of Maryland Medical Center shows that laughter helps relieve the stress that damages the endothelium, the tissue that forms the inner lining of blood vessels and helps your blood flow. It also promotes the healthy function of blood vessels.

Harrison Memorial Hospital awarded accreditation from The Joint Commission

Harrison Memorial Hospital announced that it has earned The Joint Commission's Gold Seal of Approval® for hospital accreditation by demonstrating continuous compliance with its performance standards. The Gold Seal of Approval® is a symbol of quality that reflects an organization's commitment to providing safe and effective patient care. HMH has maintained this tradition of accreditation since 1973.

Harrison Memorial Hospital underwent a rigorous, unannounced on-site survey in November 2014. During the review, a team of Joint Commission expert surveyors evaluated compliance with hospital standards related to several areas, including emergency management, environment of care, infection prevention and control, leadership, and medication management. Surveyors also conducted on-site observations and interviews.

"Joint Commission accreditation provides hospitals with the processes needed to improve in a variety of areas from the enhancement of staff education to the improvement of daily business operations," said Mark G. Pelletier, RN, M.S., chief operating officer, Division of Accreditation and Certification Operations, The Joint Commission. "In addition, our accreditation helps hospitals enhance their risk management and risk reduction strategies. We commend Harrison Memorial Hospital for its efforts to become a quality improvement organization."

"Once again achieving Joint Commission accreditation reinforces our goal of continually progressing toward excellence in health care. We see improving how we provide care to our patients as a never-ending process, as we continue to collaborate with other hospitals nationwide, share ideas for improvement and implement cutting-edge protocols," said Sheila Currans, HMH Chief Executive Officer. "This validation assists us in promoting a culture of excellence in care at HMH."

How to get the best travel deals in 2015

(StatePoint) Looking to get more out of your vacation dollar? Before booking, take a cue from the experts.

Each year, Travelzoo predicts where American travelers are likely to find the best bang for their buck. Last year, they correctly forecast how European river cruises would offer tremendous value in 2014. This year they are highlighting five new destinations, including Texas Hill Country.

"Our 2015 prediction offers an eclectic mix of destinations, but all have a common theme: increased infrastructure and competition, which means deals, deals, deals for the American traveler," says Gabe Saglie, senior editor for Travelzoo.

From Asia's tantalizing cities to the vibrant colors of Rio de Janeiro, here is where Travelzoo says Americans can score a terrific deal in the coming year:

Texas Hill Country

The downtown landscapes of Austin and San Antonio are transforming at light-speed as visitors, businesses and new residents continue to flock to the two cities. To meet this demand, nearly a half-dozen new hotels are set to open in 2015, including properties from JW Marriott, Kimpton and Westin.

Brazil

Brazil had a great year in 2014 when hosting the World Cup, and the country has more to look forward to when it hosts the 2016 Olympics. All that investment in infrastructure will put pressure on domestic travel companies to entice international travelers to the region. Expect to see some great discounts on hotels -- including 400 new properties that will be operational before the Olympics. Travelers from Florida can also take advantage of the increased competition generated from new airline routes to Brazil.

Cruising Asia

China might not seem like an obvious choice for cruising, but Shanghai has poured serious money into cruising infrastructure; including the Wusongkou International Cruise Terminal, which can handle the world's largest ships. As a result, cruise lines are adding new ships and itineraries throughout Asia, including China, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, Singapore, South Korea, Sri Lanka, the Philippines and Thailand.

Royal Caribbean International is even moving its newest ship, "Quantum of the Seas," to Shanghai. As cruise lines compete to fill their cabins, expect to see more deals.

Puerto Rico

Puerto Rico has long appealed to American travelers: no U.S. passports are required to visit, English is spoken and the U.S. dollar is accepted. Thanks to new routes and increased services from airports around the U.S. in recent months (from JetBlue, Southwest Airlines and United Airlines), flights to Puerto Rico are now among the cheapest in the Caribbean. Travelzoo anticipates this trend will continue in 2015.

Dubai

Despite a huge hotel expansion to support the upcoming World Expo in 2020, Dubai experienced its lowest occupancy rate in 18 years this past summer. Lots of space to fill equates to discounted hotel rooms. Add to this the fact that Dubai's new Al Maktoum International Airport is gearing up for a $32 billion expansion over the next decade, and it could mean 2015 is the right time to get ahead of the crowds.

For more information and deals to Travelzoo's 2015 Wow Deal Destinations visit www.Travelzoo.com/Destinations/wow2015.

If the experts have it right again this year, Americans will be able to save a small fortune on travel to once-in-a-lifetime destinations in 2015.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service proposes special rule to protect the Northern Long-Eared bat

Rule would apply if species is listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act

In response to the rapid and severe decline of the northern long-eared bat – a species important for crop pest control – the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is proposing a special rule under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) that would provide the maximum benefit to the species while limiting the regulatory burden on the public.

If finalized, the rule, under section 4(d) of the ESA, would apply only in the event the Service lists the bat as “threatened.” The Service’s proposal will appear in the Federal Register Jan. 16, 2015, opening a 60-day public comment period.

“White-nose syndrome is having a devastating effect on the nation’s bat populations, which play a vital role in sustaining a healthy environment and save billions of dollars by controlling forest and agricultural pests,” said Service Midwest Regional Director Tom Melius. “We need to do what we can to make sure we are putting commonsense protections in place that support vulnerable bat species but are targeted to minimize impact on human activities. Through this proposed 4(d) rule, we are seeking public comment on how we can use the flexibilities inherent in the ESA to protect the bat and economic activity.”

The Service proposed to list the northern long-eared bat as endangered under the ESA in October 2013 and is due to make a final decision by April 2, 2015. The Service’s options include listing the species as endangered; listing as threatened; listing as threatened with a 4(d) rule; and withdrawing the proposal to list.

“While we originally proposed the northern long-eared bat as endangered, the ongoing scientific review of threats to the species could possibly lead to a final listing determination of threatened rather than endangered,” Melius added. “Although a final listing decision has not yet been made, we believe we can best serve the American people by proposing and seeking comment on a potential 4(d) rule now, so if we determine listing as threatened with a 4(d) rule is appropriate, the rule can be implemented immediately.”

Bat populations have declined sharply across the country due to white-nose syndrome, a fungal disease affecting cave-hibernating bats. Some human activities also impact these species, particularly close to their hibernation caves, creating heightened challenges for bat populations already weakened by disease.

The northern long-eared bat is found in the United States from Maine to North Carolina on the Atlantic Coast, westward to eastern Oklahoma and north through the Dakotas, reaching into eastern Montana and Wyoming. In some caves in the Northeast, northern long-eared bat populations have declined by up to 99 percent. White-nose syndrome or the fungus causing the disease is found in much of the northern long-eared bat’s range.

For areas of the country affected by white-nose syndrome, the measures provided in the proposed 4(d) rule exempt take from forest management practices, maintenance and limited expansion of transportation and utility rights-of-way, removal of trees and brush to maintain prairie habitat, and limited tree removal projects, provided these activities protect known maternity roosts and hibernacula. The proposed 4(d) rule also exempts take as a result of removal of hazardous trees, removal of northern long-eared bats from human dwellings, and research-related activities. These measures are designed to protect northern long-eared bats when they are most vulnerable, including when they occupy hibernacula and during the two-month pup-rearing season from June through July. The greatest potential restrictions would be during these months, with reduced restrictions at all other times.

In parts of the country not affected by white-nose syndrome, the proposed rule recognizes activities that result in incidental take of bats are not imperiling the species, and all will be exempt from the act’s protections.

Since the outbreak of white-nose syndrome in North America, the Service has led the coordinated national response of states, federal agencies, tribes, conservation organizations and scientific institutions to address the problem through disease monitoring and management, conservation and outreach. Working with the goals identified in the national white-nose syndrome response plan, the Service has granted more than $20 million to institutions and federal and state agencies for research and response. The national effort has united experts in bat biology, wildlife disease, wildlife ecology, ecosystem management and other fields to share information and seek measures to address white-nose syndrome and bat conservation.

Under the ESA, an endangered designation indicates a species is currently in danger of extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range; a threatened designation means a species is likely to become endangered in the foreseeable future. The act and the Service’s implementing regulations prohibit take, including harming, harassing and killing, of endangered and threatened species unless otherwise permitted.

For species listed as threatened, the Service may issue a 4(d) rule to provide protections that are deemed necessary and advisable for conservation of the species. Such a rule ensures private landowners and citizens are not unduly burdened by regulations that do not further the conservation of the species and are exempted from take prohibitions when conducting activities that actively benefit the species.

The Service is seeking public comment on the proposed 4(d) rule and is accepting comments on its October 2013 proposal to list the northern long-eared bat under the ESA. Comments are accepted through March 17, 2015. Specifically, the Service is seeking comment on whether it may be appropriate to exempt incidental take as a result of other categories of activities beyond those covered in the proposed rule and if so, under what conditions and with what conservation measures.

You may submit comments by one of the following methods:

• Electronically: Go to the Federal eRulemaking Portal: <http://www.regulations.gov>. In the Search box, enter Docket No. FWS-R5-ES-2011-0024. You may submit a comment by clicking on “Comment Now!” Please ensure you have found the correct rulemaking before submitting your comment.

• By hard copy: Submit by U.S. mail or hand delivery to: Public Comments Processing, Attn: FWS-R5-ES-2011-0024; Division of Policy and Directives Management; U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, MS: BPHC; 5275 Leesburg

Pike, Falls Church, Va. 22041-3803.

All comments will be posted on <http://www.regulations.gov>. This generally means we will post any personal information you provide us. If you previously submitted comments or information on the October 2013 proposed rule to list the northern long-eared bat, please do not resubmit them. We have incorporated them into the public record, and we will consider them fully in our final determination.
